

Week of June 12 to June 16, 2017

Equities	Commodities
Canadian equities slipped this week, tracking global markets that fell on concerns over the global growth. U.S. equities mostly fell this week, led by stocks in the information technology sector. European stocks dropped last Thursday to April lows.	Oil prices rebounded this Friday after hitting their lowest settlement of 2017, but registered their fourth weekly loss in a row—the longest such streak of declines in nearly two years.
Fixed income	Currencies
Fed raised its interest rates by 0.25% last Wednesday and still maintains forecast for one more hike in 2017. 10-year U.S. Treasury yields climbed this week.	U.S. dollar advanced this week against the major currencies.
